How will I find out about my examinations?

Every student who has been entered for an examination will receive an individual timetable via their Form Tutor, printed from the Academy's database, which will show entries and seating allocation for all examinations. A general exam timetable will be posted on the exams notice board and on the Academy website under the exams information section.

If your timetable shows more than one examination taking place at the same time, you will either take the exams one after the other, in the same room and seat as per your first examination or you will be advised of alternative arrangements for taking your examinations, which may include periods of supervision.

The information on the timetable shows your personal details and the subject(s) you have been entered for. You should check this information carefully and if any of it is incorrect or missing then you should notify the Exams Officer as soon as possible, don't leave this until the day of the exam!

What should I bring to my exam?

You MUST bring to all your examinations, the following standard equipment:

A clear pencil case, containing black pens, HB pencils, a ruler and eraser, plus compass and protractor, and calculator where allowed.

For some other examinations you may need additional materials, such as drawing/mathematical instruments, (compass and protractor) set texts, resource booklets and calculators. You should check with your teachers as to what equipment you will need and are allowed to bring into your examination.

Calculators are not allowed for some mathematics examinations, these are normally clearly identified on your timetable but if you are in doubt, you should check with your teacher or the Exams Officer. Remember to bring a calculator for all Science exams.

For most examinations, calculators are treated as standard equipment but should not have the following capabilities:

- Language translators
- Symbolic algebra manipulation
- Symbolic differentiation or integration
- Remote communication with other machines or the Internet
- Dictionary
- Mathematical formulae
- Data Bank
- Text

They should be of a size suitable for use on a desk. You are responsible for the power supply for the calculator. Instruction leaflets and printed formula on the lid of the calculator case should not be brought into the examination room. Any stored data should be removed prior to the exam.

Remember, if in doubt; leave it out of the examination room. Please refer to the additional guidance regarding calculators near the end of this booklet.

You are allowed to bring a drink of water into your exam, but it must only be water, in a clear plastic bottle with all labels removed. Good hydration in exams is very important and will help you think more clearly.

When should I arrive at the examination room?

All morning examinations will begin at 9:00am and afternoon sessions at 1:30pm or 1:45pm, unless you are told otherwise, or the start time is adjusted on your timetable check the times carefully, on your personal exam timetable.

Always attend your exams wearing full school uniform.

Please ensure you are in school at least 20 minutes prior to each of your examinations. Make your way directly to your examination room, or if your examination is in the Hall or Sports Hall to the covered area near Design and Technology, where you should line up quickly and quietly, in the correct column for your seat allocation. If the Exams Officer blows the whistle please be silent straight away, and listen to any instructions. Examination Invigilators will let you know when you can enter the examination room.

You should check the Examinations Notice Board in advance of your examination, or check with your subject teacher, to find out if you are to attend a subject briefing prior to specific exams, and where this will take place, once you have attended this, you should follow the instructions above with regard to where you should go.

What if I am late?

If you arrive late for your exam, then you should go immediately to your examination room. You will be allowed to sit the examination, but if you are very late and/or candidates have already been released from the examination, your script may not be marked. You MUST then speak to the Examinations Officer directly after your examination.

What happens in the examination room?

Once you have entered the examination room you must remain silent.

You should go directly to your allocated seat, checking the printed desk label where applicable.

The Lead Examination Invigilator will read out the instructions for the examination to you, including how you are expected to behave and when you can begin, please listen carefully.

The details you will need to complete on the front sheet of your question papers will be clearly shown on the white board at the front of the room, and also read out to you. Remember you must write in BLACK INK ONLY. These details will include the examination name and paper reference, start and finish times and our Academy examinations Centre Number. Your individual candidate number will be clearly shown on both your timetable and where applicable on your desk label, this number will stay with you through Year 9, 10 and 11 so please try and remember it. Invigilators can help you to read the instructions on the front of your question paper only. Do not “doodle” on your paper! Defacing a paper can result in it not being marked. You are responsible for producing legible writing, so make sure the examiner can read your answers.

Clocks will be visible to you to allow you to keep track of the time. The Lead Invigilator will tell you when you have five minutes of examination time remaining and when to stop writing.

You should remain seated in silence for the entire time you are in the examination room. An Invigilator will collect your completed scripts and tell you when you may leave.

If you feel ill, need to go to the toilet, require replacement equipment or have any other questions, raise your hand and an Invigilator will come to you. Never leave your seat or shout out in an examination.

What is considered to be malpractice in examinations and what sanctions can be applied?

The Academy operates a zero tolerance policy with regard to malpractice in examinations. You must not talk, turn around, behave in a distracting manner or carry out any action which could be interpreted by a member of the Invigilation Team/Examinations Staff as an attempt to communicate with another candidate.

Candidate malpractice also includes (this list is not exhaustive and awarding bodies will consider all requests from our Academy for consideration regarding malpractice):

- the alteration or falsification of any results document, including certificates;
- a breach of the instructions or advice of an Invigilator, supervisor, or the awarding body in relation to the examination or assessment rules and regulations;
- failing to abide by the conditions of supervision designed to maintain the security of the examinations or assessments;
- collusion: working collaboratively with other candidates, beyond what is permitted;
- copying from another candidate (including the use of ICT to aid the copying);
- allowing work to be copied e.g. posting written coursework on social networking sites prior to an examination/assessment;
- the deliberate destruction of another candidate's work;
- disruptive behaviour in the examination room or during an assessment session (including the use of offensive language);
- exchanging, obtaining, receiving, passing on information (or the attempt to) which could be examination related by means of talking, electronic, written or non-verbal communication;
- making a false declaration of authenticity in relation to the authorship of controlled assessments, coursework or the contents of a portfolio;
- allowing others to assist in the production of controlled assessments, coursework or assisting others in the production of controlled assessments or coursework;
- the misuse, or the attempted misuse, of examination and assessment materials and resources (e.g. exemplar materials);
- being in possession of confidential material in advance of the examination;
- bringing into the examination room notes in the wrong format (where notes are permitted in examinations) or inappropriately annotated texts (in open book examinations);
- the inclusion of inappropriate, offensive or obscene material in scripts, controlled assessments, coursework or portfolios;
- impersonation: pretending to be someone else, arranging for another person to take one's place in an examination or an assessment;
- plagiarism: unacknowledged copying from published sources or incomplete referencing;
- theft of another candidate's work;
- bringing into the examination room or assessment situation unauthorised material, for example: notes, study guides and personal organisers, own blank paper, calculators, dictionaries (when prohibited), instruments which can capture a digital image, electronic dictionaries, reading pens, translators, wordlists, glossaries, iPods, mobile phones, Smart watches, MP3 players, pagers or other similar electronic devices;
- the unauthorised use of a memory stick where a candidate uses a word processor;
- behaving in a manner so as to undermine the integrity of the examination.

Standard Awarding Body penalties for malpractice include:

- a warning;
- loss of marks gained for a section;
- loss of all the marks gained for a component;
- loss of all the marks gained for a unit;
- disqualification from the unit.
- disqualification from all units in one or more qualifications taken in the series;
- disqualification from the whole qualification;
- disqualification from all qualifications taken in that series.
- barred from entering for examinations for a set period of time.

You MUST leave all your belongings, other than examination equipment, in your lockers before you attend your exam. DO NOT CONSIDER TAKING YOUR MOBILE PHONE INTO THE EXAMINATION ROOM. IT IS NOT WORTH THE RISK. Think about leaving your phone at home on examination days.

If your phone is found to be switched on or off in an exam, we will report it to the Awarding Body and the minimum penalty will be cancellation of your exam paper. Awarding Bodies can also decide not to allow you to enter any further examinations, or disqualify you from exams already taken in the current season.

Exam fees

Whilst The Academy is happy to pay for the exams that students attend, we shall be charging parents/carers for any exams where papers are rejected through lateness or malpractice (having a mobile phone etc) or exams that students miss (unless the Exam Board applies special consideration)

A bit of advice

Take time to read all the instructions on the exam paper and carry them out exactly – if unsure raise your hand and an Invigilator will help you with this, but remember an invigilator can only read you the instructions on the front of the paper. Answering the wrong questions cannot be put right later and may seriously affect your grade. There are often blank pages in the middle of an exam booklet, which are meant to be there and are labelled 'BLANK PAGE'. Don't assume you have finished until you reach the instruction 'END OF EXAMINATION'. Pupils have been known to leave out whole questions. You are responsible for producing legible writing, so make sure the examiner can read your answers.

When you have finished, use your remaining time to check your work thoroughly, including whether you have numbered your questions and signed any answer sheets, where applicable.

When you are allowed, leave the exam room in silence. Other examinations may still be ongoing. Make your way quietly to your lessons.

Illness and other emergencies

If you are taken ill during an examination, raise your hand and an Invigilator will take care of you. If you are taken ill at home and cannot come into The Academy for your exam, you must:

- Telephone The Academy or ask someone to call for you. The Academy number is 01777 713700.

- Obtain a letter from your doctor and send it in to The Academy immediately so that we can request Special Consideration from the Awarding Body. It is very important that you send evidence of your illness straight away, as we only have 7 days to request Special Consideration and will have to provide evidence of your illness at the same time. We cannot guarantee you will get a grade for any missed examinations but it is always worth asking the Awarding Body to consider it.

If you are ill but still feel as though you can sit your exam, you must let the Lead Invigilator know that you are unwell. They will record this on the paperwork for the examination. You must then see the Examinations Officer and ask for Special Consideration as it is unlikely you will have worked to the best of your ability.

For prolonged illness/debilitating conditions, Special Consideration can be requested for a series of exams.

Other circumstances can affect your performance in an examination. The Invigilators will note down anything which they judge worthy during the exam but if there is anything happening at home which may affect your performance, you must let the Examinations Officer know as soon as possible.

Access arrangements

You should know if Access Arrangements have been made with Awarding Bodies for your examinations. Your consent should have been requested.

Access Arrangements are put in place for students to mirror, as much as possible, their normal way of working at The Academy. Access Arrangements are granted to enable you to have equal access to examination papers and assessments as other students.

If you know that you currently have Access Arrangements agreed for examinations, such as extra time, scribes and readers, but do not want these arrangements for your examinations, you must see the Examinations Officer as soon as possible.

If you think you should have Access Arrangements, but these are not currently in place, you must see the Examinations Officer as soon as possible.

More reading

It is your responsibility to read and abide by the following information, which is issued jointly by all of the Awarding Bodies. Larger copies of this information will be displayed in and around the rooms in which you take your examinations as a reminder of your expected conduct and preparedness. This information is also available on The Academy website in the exams section and is posted on the exams notice board. There is a particularly important information sheet, which has guidelines around referring to exams/assessments via the internet, on social media etc. Please read this carefully and ensure you follow these rules, together with all the other exam rules and regulations.

Lack of knowledge of these rules and regulations will not be accepted as an excuse for malpractice in examinations.

Information for candidates Guidelines when referring to examinations/assessments through the Internet

This document has been written to help you. Please read it carefully.

We all like to share our experiences when taking examinations. However, it is important to consider what you say. Your comments may lead to an investigation for malpractice and result in the application of a penalty.

Awarding bodies monitor social media and websites. They do not wish to see candidates jeopardise their marks or grades as there are significant consequences for anyone caught breaching the rules for examinations, controlled assessment or coursework.

The rules are set by the Joint Council for Qualifications^{CIC} (JCQ^{CIC}) on behalf of all the awarding bodies and can be found at: <http://www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/malpractice>

Examples of statements or activities that will lead to a malpractice investigation include:

- copying or allowing work to be copied – i.e. posting written work on social networking sites prior to an examination/assessment;
- collusion: working collaboratively with other candidates beyond what is permitted;
- allowing others to help produce your work or helping others with theirs;
- being in possession of confidential material in advance of the examination;
- exchanging, obtaining, receiving or passing on information by any means of communication (even if just attempting to);
- passing on rumours of exam content from another candidate.

This list is not exhaustive. Other instances of candidate malpractice may be considered by an awarding body.

If you are found guilty of breaching any of these rules you could find yourself facing:

- a warning;
- the loss of marks for a section, component or unit;
- disqualification from a unit, all units or qualifications; or
- a ban from sitting exams for a set period of time.

You must familiarise yourself with the rules:

<http://www.jcq.org.uk/exams-office/information-for-candidates-documents>

Take care to avoid possible malpractice and the application of a penalty.

Information for candidates – GCSE controlled assessments

This document tells you about some things that you must and must not do when you are completing your work.

When you submit any work for marking, you will be asked to sign an authentication statement confirming that you have read and followed these regulations.

If there is anything that you do not understand, you must ask your teacher or lecturer.

Controlled assessment will provide you with an opportunity to do some independent research into a topic. The research you do may involve looking for information in published sources such as textbooks, encyclopedias, journals, TV, radio and on the internet.

Using information from published sources (including the internet) as the basis for your assignment is a good way to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of a subject. You must take care how you use this material though - you cannot copy it and claim it as your own work.

The regulations state that:

“the work which you submit for assessment must be your own”;

“you must not copy from someone else or allow another candidate to copy from you”.

If you use the same wording as a published source, you must place quotation marks around the passage and state where it came from. This is called “referencing”. You must make sure that you give detailed references for everything in your work which is not in your own words. A reference from a printed book or journal should show the name of the author, the year of publication and the page number, for example: (Morrison, 2000, pg.29).

For material taken from the internet, your reference should show the date when the material was downloaded and must show the precise web page, not the search engine used to locate it. This can be copied from the address line. For example: (<http://www.bbc.co.uk/schools/16/sosteacher/history/49766.shtml>), downloaded 5 February 2017.

You may be required to include a bibliography at the end of your work. Your teacher or lecturer will tell you whether a bibliography is necessary. Where required, your bibliography must list the full details of publications you have used in your research, even where these are not directly referred to, for example: Morrison, A. (2000) ‘Mary, Queen of Scots’, London: Weston Press.

If you copy the words or ideas of others and don’t show your sources in references and a bibliography, this will be considered as cheating.

This information has been taken from JCQ General Regulations for Approved Centres 2016-2017

Preparing your work – good practice

If you receive help and guidance from someone other than your teacher, you must tell your teacher who will then record the nature of the assistance given to you.

If you worked as part of a group on an assignment, for example undertaking field research, you must each write up your own account of the assignment. Even if the data you have is the same, the description of how that data was obtained and the conclusions you draw from it should be in your own words.

You must meet the deadlines that your teacher gives you. Remember - your teachers are there to guide you. Although they cannot give you direct assistance, they can help you to sort out any problems before it is too late.

Take care of your work and keep it safe. Don't leave it lying around where your classmates can find it. You must always keep your work secure and confidential whilst you are preparing it; do not share it with your classmates. If it is stored on the computer network, keep your password secure. Collect all copies from the printer and destroy those you don't need.

Don't be tempted to use essays from on-line essay banks — this is cheating. Electronic tools used by awarding bodies can detect this sort of copying.

You must not write inappropriate, offensive or obscene material.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism involves taking someone else's words, thoughts or ideas and trying to pass them off as your own. It is a form of cheating which is taken very seriously.

Don't think you won't be caught; there are many ways to detect plagiarism.

- Markers can spot changes in the style of writing and use of language.
- Markers are highly experienced subject specialists who are very familiar with work on the topic concerned — they may have read the source you are using (or even marked the essay you have copied from!).
- Internet search engines and specialised computer software can be used to match phrases or pieces of text with original sources and to detect changes in the grammar and style of writing or punctuation.

Penalties for breaking the regulations

If your work is submitted and it is discovered that you have broken the regulations, one of the following penalties will be applied:

- the piece of work will be awarded zero marks;
- you will be disqualified from that unit for the examination series in question;
- you will be disqualified from the whole subject for that examination series;
- you will be disqualified from all subjects and barred from entering again for a period of time.

Your awarding body will decide which penalty is appropriate.

REMEMBER – IT'S YOUR QUALIFICATION SO IT NEEDS TO BE YOUR OWN WORK

Information for candidates

GCE, ELC and Project qualifications - coursework assessments

This document tells you about some things that you must, and must not do when you are completing coursework.

When you submit any coursework for marking, you will be asked to sign an authentication statement confirming that you have read and followed these regulations.

If there is anything that you do not understand, you must ask your teacher or lecturer.

Coursework provides you with an opportunity to do some independent research into a topic. The research you do will involve looking for information in published sources such as textbooks, encyclopedias, journals, TV, radio and on the internet.

Using information from published sources (including the internet) as the basis for your coursework is a good way to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of a subject. You must take care how you use this material though - you cannot copy it and claim it as your own work.

The regulations state that:

"the work which you submit for assessment must be your own";

A reference from a printed book or journal should show the name of the author, the year of publication and the page number, for example: (Morrison, 2000, pg.29).

For material taken from the internet, your reference should show the date when the material was downloaded and must show the precise web page, not the search engine used to locate it. This can be copied from the address line. For example: (<http://www.bbc.co.uk/schools/16/sosteacher/history/49766.shtml>), downloaded 5 February 2017.

You must also include a bibliography at the end of your work. This must list the full details of publications you have used in your research, even where these are not directly referred to, for example: Morrison, A. (2000) "Mary, Queen of Scots", London: Weston Press.

If you copy the words or ideas of others and don't show your sources in references and a bibliography, this will be considered as cheating.

Preparing your coursework – good practice

If you receive help and guidance from someone other than your teacher, you must tell your teacher who will then record the nature of the assistance given to you.

Your parent/carer may provide you with access to resource materials and discuss your coursework with you. However, they must not give you direct advice on what should and should not be included.

If you worked as part of a group on an assignment, for example undertaking field research, you must each write up your own account of the assignment. Even if the data you have is the same, the description of how that data was obtained and the conclusions you draw from it should be in your own words.

You must meet the deadlines that your teacher gives you. Remember - your teachers are there to guide you. Although they cannot give you direct assistance, they can help you to sort out any problems before it is too late.

Take care of your work and keep it safe. Don't leave it lying around where your classmates can find it. You must always keep your coursework secure and confidential whilst you are preparing it; do not share it with your classmates. If it is stored on the computer network, keep your password secure. Collect all copies from the printer and destroy those you don't need.

Don't be tempted to use essays from on-line essay banks — this is cheating. Electronic tools used by awarding bodies can detect this sort of copying.

You must not write inappropriate, offensive or obscene material.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism involves taking someone else's words, thoughts or ideas and trying to pass them off as your own. It is a form of cheating which is taken very seriously.

Don't think you won't be caught; there are many ways to detect plagiarism.

- Markers can spot changes in the style of writing and use of language.
- Markers are highly experienced subject specialists who are very familiar with work on the topic concerned — they may have read the source you are using (or even marked the essay you have copied from!).
- Internet search engines and specialised computer software can be used to match phrases or pieces of text with original sources and to detect changes in the grammar and style of writing or punctuation.

Penalties for breaking the regulations

If your work is submitted and it is discovered that you have broken the regulations, one of the following penalties will be applied:

- the piece of work will be awarded zero marks;
- you will be disqualified from that unit for that examination series;
- you will be disqualified from the whole subject for that examination series;
- you will be disqualified from all subjects and barred from entering again for a period of time. Your awarding body will decide which penalty is appropriate.

Information for candidates – Privacy Notice General and Vocational qualifications Effective from 1

September 2016

The JCQ awarding bodies will process your personal data in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Code of Practice issued by the qualification regulators of England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Correspondence on any aspect of a candidate's examination or assessment will only be conducted between the awarding body and the head of the centre, a member of the senior leadership team or the examinations officer.

Awarding bodies will undertake the following administrative activities in relation to the processing and exchange of candidates' personal data:

1. Personal data relating to the name(s), date of birth, gender, unique candidate identifier (UCI) and unique learner number (ULN) of an individual candidate will always be collected by an awarding body for the purposes of examining and awarding qualifications. In some cases additional information, which may include sensitive personal data relating to health, will also be collected to support requests for access arrangements and reasonable adjustments and/or special consideration. Such personal data will be supplemented by the results of examinations and assessments undertaken by the respective candidate.
2. A candidate's personal data will only be collected from registered examination centres in the context of examination entries and/or certification claims.
3. Such data collected will not be used by an awarding body other than for the administration of the examinations process, conducting assessments and the certification of results claims.
4. Personal data within candidates' work will be collected and processed by an awarding body for the purposes of marking, issuing of examination results and providing candidates with access to post-results services. Examination results will be retained for a minimum of forty years.

In order for an awarding body to achieve this, some personal information may be transferred to third parties such as examiners, who may in some instances, reside outside the European Economic Area.

5. Awarding bodies may be required to provide a candidate's personal data to educational agencies such as DfE, WG, DENI, The Skills Funding Agency, Ofqual, HESA, UCAS, Local Authorities, EFA and Learning Records Service (LRS). Additionally, candidates' personal data may be provided to a central record of qualifications approved by the awarding bodies for statistical and policy development purposes.
6. Some of the information candidates supply will be used by the Skills Funding Agency to fulfil its statutory functions, issue/verify a candidate's Unique Learner Number (ULN) and update/check a candidate's Personal Learning Record.

The Skills Funding Agency may share a candidate's ULN and Personal Learning Record with other education related organisations, such as a careers service, a candidate's school or college, Government Departments and public bodies responsible for education. Further details of how information is processed and shared can be found at:

<http://www.learningrecordservice.org.uk/>

7. Awarding bodies are obliged to confirm what personal data is held, what it is held for, to whom the data is to/may be disclosed to, and disclose the information that they hold about data subjects, (e.g. the candidates) within 40 days of receiving a formal request for disclosure, subject to the application of any relevant exemptions under the Data Protection Act 1998.

Candidates should make an application to the appropriate awarding body's data protection officer. Awarding bodies may charge a fee for this service.

8. If you have not reached the age of 16, you may first wish to discuss this Privacy Notice with your parent or legal guardian.

Awarding bodies, schools, Department for Education (DfE), Welsh Government (WG), Department of Education Northern Ireland (DENI), Local Authorities, the Office of the Qualifications and Examinations Regulation (Ofqual), Ofsted, and Skills Funding Agency (SFA) are all 'data controllers' under the Data Protection Act 1998, in that they determine the purpose(s) for which 'personal data' (information about living individuals from which they can be identified) is processed and the way in which that processing is undertaken.

It is a requirement for data controllers to provide data subjects (individuals who are the subject of personal data) with details of who they are, the purposes for which they process the personal data, and any other information that is necessary to make the processing of the personal data secure and accurate, including any third parties to whom it may be passed to

Information for candidates: non-examination assessments

This document tells you about some things that you must and must not do when you are completing your work.

When you submit your work for marking, the awarding body will normally require you to sign an authentication statement confirming that you have read and followed these regulations.

If there is anything that you do not understand, you must ask your teacher or lecturer.

In some subjects you will have an opportunity to do some independent research into a topic. The research you do may involve looking for information in published sources such as textbooks, encyclopedias, journals, TV, radio, and on the internet.

Using information from published sources (including the internet) as the basis for your assignment is a good way to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of a subject. You must take care how you use this material though - you cannot copy it and claim it as your own work.

The regulations state that:

"the work which you submit for assessment must be your own";

"you must not copy from someone else or allow another candidate to copy from you".

When producing a piece of written work, if you use the same wording as a published source you must place quotation marks around the passage and state where it came from. This is called "referencing". You must make sure that you give detailed references for everything in your work which is not in your own words. A reference from a printed book or journal should show the name of the author, the year of publication and the page number, for example: (Morrison, 2000, pg.29).

For material taken from the internet, your reference should show the date when the material was downloaded and must show the precise web page, not the search engine used to locate it. This can be copied from the address line. For example: (<http://www.bbc.co.uk/schools/16/sosteacher/history/49766.shtml>), downloaded 5 February 2017.

You may be required to include a bibliography at the end of your piece of written work. Your teacher or lecturer will tell you whether a bibliography is necessary. Where required, your bibliography must list the full details of publications you have used in your research, even where these are not directly referred to, for example: Morrison, A. (2000) 'Mary, Queen of Scots', London: Weston Press.

If you copy the words or ideas of others and don't show your sources in references and a bibliography, this will be considered as cheating.

Penalties for breaking the regulations

If your work is submitted and it is discovered that you have broken the regulations, one of the following penalties will be applied:

- the piece of work will be awarded zero marks;
- you will be disqualified from that component for the examination series in question;
- you will be disqualified from the whole subject for that examination series;

Using calculators

Candidates may use a calculator in an examination unless prohibited by the awarding body's specification. Where the use of a calculator is allowed, candidates are responsible for making sure that their calculators meet the awarding bodies' regulations.

The instructions set out in this section apply to all examinations unless stated otherwise in an awarding body's specification.

Candidates must be told these regulations beforehand and be familiar with the Information for candidates documents.

Calculators must be: <ul style="list-style-type: none">○ of a size suitable for use on the desk;○ either battery or solar powered;○ free of lids, cases and covers which have printed instructions or formulas.	Calculators must not: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• be designed or adapted to offer any of these facilities: -<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ language translators;○ symbolic algebra manipulation;○ symbolic differentiation or integration;○ communication with other machines or the internet;• be borrowed from another candidate during an examination for any reason;*• have retrievable information stored in them - this includes:<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ databanks;○ dictionaries;○ mathematical formulas;○ text.
The candidate is responsible for the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none">○ the calculator's power supply;○ the calculator's working condition;○ clearing anything stored in the calculator.

Advice:* An invigilator may give a candidate a replacement calculator.

Where access is permitted to a calculator for part of an examination, it is acceptable for candidates to place their calculators on the floor under their desks in sight of the invigilator(s) for the non-calculator portion of the exam.
